PART TWENTY TWO.
January 13, 1853. Detective Wornall of Bethel has 15 men, implicated in violation of the fish and game laws, before the grand jury.

Col. R. T. Lurvey of Paris, aged 52, and blind, fell down stairs breaking several ribs and receiving such internal injuries that it is thought he cannot recover.

Mrs. Ruth G. McLellan, of Brown Hill, died Dec. 25th, aged 81 years. There are some suspicious circumstances attending her death. She died of an overdose of morphine. Her husband is 20 years younger than she. He says she took the morphine herself. She was a grand-daughter of Rev. Jacob Rice, first pastor of the Cong. church in the town.

Jan. 26. The report of the State Liquor Commissioner has been transmitted to the Senate. In 1892 the sale of liquor at the various authorized agencies in the State amounted to $2,112,442. The sales in the principal cities were as follows:

OXFORD COUNTY MAN TO SUCCEED

Obadiah Gardner as Chairman State Assessors.

Tuesday, Governor Plaisted nominated Obadiah Gardner, of East Waterville, for chairman of the State Board of Assessors, to succeed Obadiah Gardner, who has resigned the office to become United States Senator.

Mr. Gardner was a candidate for sheriff in Oxford County at the last election, having been defeated by a small majority. He has been considered the office carefully for a week, but his acceptance was announced on Tuesday.

July 1. The Oxford County Record is the name of a six-column folio week, just started by R. F. Woodward at Kears Falls.

The store of Grover & Barnham, Bethel, was robbed of goods of considerable value night of the 25th ult.

July 11. The house and barn of Moses Harrison, West Fryeburg, were shattered by lightning last week. A swine, the property display was especially good and everyone remarked on the quality of the produce.

The Turner band furnished music during the fair.

The cattle exhibit was good, also the swine. The poultry display was especially good and everyone remarked on the quality of the produce.

PREMIUMS AWARDED AT ANDOVER FAIR.

It was estimated that 1200 people attended the fair at Andover, Thursday, Wednesday was rather a bad day and only 500 attended, but on Thursday there were automobiles galore as well as teams.

The officers of the society are: C. F. Poor, pres.; L. C. Akers, vice pres.; J. E. Talbot, sec.; R. A. Grover, treas.; J. E. Akers, J. P. Caldwell, S. F. Abbott, H. L. Poor, J. H. Abbott, trustees.

The division superintendents are: C. T. Poor, horses and cattle; S. F. Abbott, swine; C. T. Poor, vegetables and fruit; J. H. Abbott, poultry; J. H. Abbott, dairy.

The races programmed were cancelled owing to a lack of horses, the Ladies' Driving Class being the only one to fill.

The ball game between the Andover team and the team from Smith's Crossing was the feature of the day, and was won by the Smiths with a score of 5 to 3. The purse was $25.

BETHEL GRANGE.

Bethel Grange met in regular session, September 28th. An unusually interesting meeting followed. Our lecturer, Mr. James Hutchins, gave an account of his recent journey to Illinois.

This interesting and instructive talk was an entertainment in itself and was greatly appreciated. Rev. J. H. Little was one of those present. He offered some helpful suggestions and other wise added to the interest of the evening.

Mrs. Valentine reported one of two interesting things that had been discovered while reading. Eli Grover gave a recitation. Della Gilman Grover, a reading.

The entertainment committee report of that work was being carried on for the entertainment our grange will give, sometime this month, probably a more complete report will be forthcoming at our next meeting.

The committee and their co-workers are enjoying their work and themselves very much while getting this affair ready for presentation. To be sure it means work but there is fun enough to make it pay.

We want all the grangers possible to get out to the grange hall when this order meets. There will always be work for all and also enjoyment for all.

There were 15 present, and nearly all of the officers were in their proper places. It was quite a bit better showing than of which was the number out the previous session. Bethel Grange is all right and if all its members will make an effort to get to the meetings, coming prepared to do something—if not anything, big—to help make the evening worth while, we shall have a prosperous, interesting grange.

Some important topics came up for discussion. One of these was the lack of water in our cattle drinking fountains for horses. The grange men are working on this.

On Thursday's ball game, Homer Richards was the official scorer and reporter. The game was a close one, the Smiths leading 3 to 2 at the end of the first inning.

The game on Wednesday, when the Smiths defeated the Andover team, was a close one, the Smiths leading 3 to 2 at the end of the first inning.

MEN AND RELIGION MOVEMENT.

A Sermon to Men by Rev. W. C. Curtis of Bethel.

Genesis 2: 7. And God created man in his own image.

The words man or men occur 2,780 times in the Bible. It is made for men, and nothing else in the world approaches it in its value to men. Add the Bible has so much to say about men and to men because man is the noblest creation of God.

As Wendell Phillips used to put it, "The grandest fruit that the earth holds up to her maker is a man." When we say that, we think of the noble men and women who have influenced our lives for good, or per chance of Lincoln and Gladstone and Paul, and Florence Nightingale and Mary Lion, whose deeds have made the whole world better.

But not every man is this grandest fruit, not every man is noble and true and uplifting and inspiring to his fellowmen.

There are not a few that are selfish and debased, depraved, polluting and depressing, men like saloon keepers, lower than the animals for they fatten on their own species.

Of course there are different conceptions of what class is the lowest of the low down men.

The greatest problem known to men for ages, is how to get to the top of the ladder. The ladder is made of the good, the noble, the true, the uplifting, the inspiring, the noble, the true, the uplifting, the inspiring.

This is the purpose of the Men and Religion movement. To help the low to get to the top of the ladder. The ladder is made of the good, the noble, the true, the uplifting, the inspiring.

The ladder is made of the good, the noble, the true, the uplifting, the inspiring.

The ladder is made of the good, the noble, the true, the uplifting, the inspiring.

The ladder is made of the good, the noble, the true, the uplifting, the inspiring.

A SONG OF THE DROUGHT. The barometer was down over the land, Pumpkin pie, good pumpkin pie! And hard its rays were withdrawn, Pumpkin pie, good pumpkin pie! But there were pumpkins true and brave, That dared to face hard's threat 'Ting wave, And thus their protest lives to save, Pumpkin pie, good pumpkin pie!

Though for the grating rain aghast, Pumpkin pie, good pumpkin pie! They were prepared to face the worst, Pumpkin pie, good pumpkin pie! And now, no friend with friend shall meet, At Harvest Fair, and taste their feast, With perfect hearts we'll bid them eat, Pumpkin pie, good pumpkin pie!

HEART THRILLING GEMS.

A MOTHER'S LOVE.

Some day,
When you are old, your thick brown hair
And drags your form in silk and lace,
When others call you "dear" and "fair,"
And hold your hands and kiss your face,
You'll not forget that far above
All others' is a mother's love.

Some day,
Among strangers in far distant lands,
In your new home beyond the sea,
When as your lips are baby hands,
And children playing at your knee,
Oh, then, as at your side they grow,
How I have loved you, you will know!

Some day,
A flower, a song, a word may be
A link between us strong and sweet;
Oh, then, dear child, remember me!
And let your heart to "mother"
beat.
My love is with you everywhere—
You cannot get beyond my prayer.

Some day,
At longest it cannot be long,
I shall with glad impatience wait,
Amid the glory and the song,
For you before the Golden Gate.
After earth's parting and earth's pain
Never to part! Never again!
Christian Work.

WHO SHALL BE GREATEST?
The longing of the restless heart,
The strife of human will,
The old dispute of ages since,
The troubled question still.

But "Jesus called a little child"—
And such hereafter shall be
The fittest type of noble souls,
And highest dignity.

For God's great ones are hidden ones;
Who deem themselves the least,
And seek to fill the lowest room,
Sit highest at the feast.

Toward him, so near God,
Such cannot stoop to boast;
They ask not who shall sit at meat,
But who shall serve the most.

Unfettered in their lowly thoughts,
They tread a royal road;
Too meek to seek the praise of men,
They win the smile of God.

Earth has a loud acclaim for those Who hold its laurels dear,
But Heaven is moved to ecstasy
Over her contrite tear!

For him who seeks to serve is kept
The welcome and the ring,
The music of the Father's house—
"Bring forth the best" for him

How long the Master's lesson waits Unlearned, yet plainly given,
That of his little ones the least
Is greatest in his heaven

TIN BUILDERS.
All are architects of Fate,
Working in these walls of Time;
Some with massive deeds and great,
Some with ornaments of rhyme.

Nothing useless is, or low;
Each thing in its place is best;
And what seems but idle show
Strengthens and supports the rest.

For the structure that we raise,
Time is with materials filled;
Our to-days and yesterdays
Are the blocks with which we build

Truly shape and fashion these;
Leave no yawning gaps between;
Thick not, because no man sees,
Each thing will remain unseen.

In the older days of Art,
Builders wrought with greatest care
Each minute and unseen part;
For the gods see everywhere

Let us do our work as well,
Hush the unseen and the seen;
Make the house where gods may dwell,
Beautiful, entire and clean

Else our lives are incomplete,
Standing in these walls of Time;
Broken stairways, where the feet
Stumble as they seek to climb

Build today, then, strong and sure,
With a true and simple base;
And, according to measure,
Shall tomorrow find its place.

SHE GOT WHAT SHE WANTED

This Woman Had to Insist Strongly, but it Paid

Chicago, Ill.—"I suffered from a female weakness and stomach trouble, and I went to the store to get a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, but the clerk did not want to let me have it—he said it was a good and wanted me to try something else, but knowing all about it I insisted and finally got it, and I am so glad I did, for it has cured me."

"I know of so many cases where women have been cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound that I can say to every suffering woman if that medicine does not help her, there is nothing that will."—Mrs. JANET ZERI, 2003 Arch St., Chicago, Ill.

This is the age of substitution, and women who want a cure should insist upon Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound just as this woman did, and not accept something else on which the druggist can make a little more profit. Women who are passing through this critical period or who are suffering from any of those distressing ills peculiar to their sex should not lose sight of the fact that for thirty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, which is made from roots and herbs, has been the standard remedy for female ills. In almost every community you will find women who have been restored to health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

I KNOW THAT GOD IS THERE.

Benjamin Phillips.
When the beautiful flowers are kissing the breeze
In the sun-drenched dells so fair,
I hear the birds in the swaying trees,
And they wake in my heart sweet memories,
And I know that God is there

When the brook murmurs soft in the summer days
I stand in wonder and stare;
And I hear God's songsters all singing
His praise,
Their hearts unburdened by such glorious lays,
And I know that God is there.

Around me the west wind seems to weep and to sigh,
For the forests are lonely and bare;
But still in the wood, saying, "Winter is nigh,"

A robin hops gaily as in days gone by
And I know that God is there.

In a snow-covered home where the north wind blows
With a song of sorrow and care,
A mother tends o'er her child in repose,
And whispers of hopes but never of woes,
And I know that God is there.

Agreed.
"Take it from me, old chap," urged the would be seller, "if you once live in the suburbs you'll never live anywhere else."
"I believe you, old top," replied the almost buyer, "I'd never be able to sell the house!"—Cleveland Leader.

Professional Proposals.
The Doctor—May I attend you in health as in sickness?
The Lawyer—May I argue all your cases for you, none with you?
The Politician—I sincerely desire your personal endorsement of my campaign for your hand.—Judge.

His Mistaken Idea.
"But, my dear," remonstrated Mr.
Meekum, "there's a good deal to be said on both sides."
"No, there isn't," answered his opponent. "I've told you what I think about it, and that's all that is going to be said."—Chicago Tribune.

Insurance and Assurance.
"Pa," asked Tommy, "what's the difference between 'assurance' and 'insurance'?"
"Well, my son, one is what the agent has, and the other is what he persists in trying to sell you."—Catholic Standard and Times.

Not Afraid.
"Aren't you afraid eating Welsh rabbit, after the theater will give you nightmares?"
"No," answered the cynical first nighter. "I'd rather have nightmares than be awake thinking about the play."—Washington Star.

Better Still.
"Don't you think you have a good mamma to spread such a nice, big slice of bread with jam for you?"
asked the visitor.
"Oh, yes," replied little Lola, "but my grandma is kinder. She lets me spread the jam myself."—Exchange.

Helps the Norwegians.
Norway has a society called the Norwegian Marching, which advises the people in all matters pertaining to the proper management of forests, draining and bringing waste lands under cultivation and encouraging the peat industry.

Silver.
The handle of a silver spoon gets hot more quickly than that of a pewter spoon when thrust into a cup of hot coffee. In fact, this is an easy and quick way of detecting imitation silver.
Silver itself has been found to be the best conductor of heat known.

Barbados.
Agriculture is the chief pursuit in Barbados, and without doubt the island is the most intensely cultivated spot in the West Indies. Sugar is the chief crop and has been from time immemorial; tobacco is grown slightly, fruit hardly at all.

The Baby Camel.
The baby camel is a curious-looking little creature, but one which you would hardly select as a household pet. Like all young beasts, it is playful, but in a modified, solemn sort of way, and is as clumsy as it is odd to look upon.

Bamboo Trees.
The bamboo tree does not blossom until its thirtieth year, when it produces seed profusely and then dies. A famine was prevented in India in 1912 by the sudden flowering of the trees, when 50,000 people gathered the seed for food.

His Excuse.
Housekeeper—You don't look as if you had washed yourself for a month.
Trump—Please, mum, the doctors say it's proper time to bathe is two hours after a meal, and I haven't had anything you could call a meal for six weeks.

Armored.
"In days of old were knights really so bold?"
"They could well afford to be. A man in sheet iron could lose a girl without getting scratched by pins in her waist."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Our Transitory Heroes.
"He woke up one morning and found himself famous."
"Well?"
"And then went and made a monkey out of himself in time for the afternoon papers to get hold of it."—Pittsburg Post.

Guarding Against Trouble.
The honeymoon of a newly married couple was about to end, and the young bride asked her husband what she could do to prove she loved him with all her heart. The husband replied:
"You might turn over all the foolish things I have written you, so that I might have the satisfaction of destroying them."—Newark Star.

He Likes Calf's Head.
In a paper published in St. Germain, France, there recently appeared an advertisement: "Gentlemen, single, great lover of calf's head, last unable to obtain less than a whole one, which is impossible for him to consume by himself, desires to find one or more associates who would share a calf's head with him three times a week."

to give you the free of all that whom he loves. The fact that the reason of the day has been that doesn't excuse him for being cheerful and alert at his evening meal.

Papa," said the hopeful youth, "can you tell me what is natural philosophy?"
"If course I can," said papa, proud and relieved to find that there was at least something to which he could tell his offspring.
"Natural philosophy is the science of cause and reason. Now, for instance, you are the steam coming out of the spout of the kettle, but you don't know why or for what reason it does so, and..."
"Oh, but I do, papa," cried the hope of the household. "The reason the steam comes out of the kettle is that motion may open your letters without your knowing it." "Tid Bits."

Roofing that's good enough for Kansas may not stand New England's climate.

That is why so many New England people are disappointed when they buy ready roofing.

AQUAS is New England's roofing.

This roofing is made especially for this climate by saturating a densely compressed wool felt with a mixture of Benzolene and Trinidad Lake asphalt.

So it is immediately adapted to withstand sudden changes in temperature and atmosphere. It does not get brittle or crack in the coldest weather—does not blow out or get sticky in the hottest weather. It is waterproof—unaffected by rain, sleet or snow. So durable that it will not break even if you walk on it. Easy to lay, and made in 10, 12 and 15 ft.

HOME OCCUPATION FOR CHILDREN.

Elizabeth C. Wright.

Were I asked in what way can we better the neighborhood conditions for children, I would say convince every mother that her duty to her child demands that she give him home occupation. The city receives eighty per cent. of her men and women of mental and moral vigor from the country. If it were not for this inflow the city would soon die. The vigor of mind and body of the country boy or girl is largely due to the fact that he, or she has healthy employment, some responsibility devolves upon him. "An idle brain is the devil's workshop." "Helen finds some work for the idle hands to do." When to begin home work I think not earlier in the child's life than ten or eleven months. As soon as a child can walk, he can be taught to put his playthings away; then when after he can bring mamma the thread or papa his slippers, and many other little acts of kindness, training him for the one object in his life, namely, to be useful to others. The child who helps at home is less selfish, shows a greater love for his family.

The reason why a mother loves her child is because she has done so much, and borne so much for it. When a child works in a home, to increase his love for the home. The home offers such a variety of work for the child; of course, the mother must take the pains to teach the child, but how amply she will be repaid. The interest he takes in home, the kindly sympathy he shows her, the assurance that she knows where he is more than compensates. Then when to close play, which every child should do daily, he enjoys his hour of play far more than he would did he not have some tasks to do. "All work and no play makes Jack a dull boy," but all play and no work makes Jack a selfish boy. I have very little sympathy with the thought that school children have out time. Thirty minutes every morning, thirty minutes every evening, three extra hours on Saturday equal ten hours a week, for forty weeks equal four hundred hours. Then five hours for six days in the week, one on Sunday for twelve vacation weeks equal seven hundred seventy-seven hours in one year. Fifteen years of such work would be equal to nearly one year's work at eight hours a day, which I think, will make most any girl quite proficient in ordinary housework; enough so that she can keep her home in a condition that will not entirely disgust her husband, and enable her to look on such a measure that will not need it necessary to have his stomach filled often than every six weeks.

I have not patience with the sentiment, "It is not natural. Some people take to housework naturally." I am not naturally a musician, but if I had begun when I was five years old and practiced even thirty minutes a day faithfully for the last quarter of a century, I think, by this time, I could manipulate the piano in such a manner that one would be able to recognize said Handel. The only way to rise in the scale of civilization is in doing things unexcused. Had the human race never done anything noble from what nature prompted, there are people who think we would still be climbing from rock to rock and tearing ourselves about. I am thankful I was born in an age when the poet, painter, philosopher, and the man who can make his own dress, his own cake, trim his own hat, sew his own coat, talk for his own health, and paint his own picture. This is the twentieth century girl let us open wide our eyes to realize her.

There was a time when the world recognized a distinct difference between brain and muscle work; but now psychologists have come to the conclusion that even the simplest manual labor the brain must direct. I think all agree that manual training is one of the best methods of character building. There is considerable chemistry and good common sense to be trained in the kitchen, and the girl who understands the intelligence of housework will make a better wife and mother, even if the pattern book claims for the millions of the world's women to perform the work. The house mother who directs the work, the mother who understands work, the mother who supervises and considers work toward her help.

A family of four children may keep a mother busy from morning until night, but if the day work on the comparative unexcused plan, say one hour or one hour and one half, daily for each of her children, she gains from four to six hours more daily for mental culture and recreation, making her own time to devote to her own work.

children in their work of mental training. Nor do I think this training should be confined to girls alone. Boys can be taught to be helpful as well as girls. It is a mystery to me why it is necessary for thousands of boys in our fair land to be dying physically, and mentally, and more especially morally, for the want of a little healthy employment, just because they happen to be born boys; and thousands of mothers dying, and worse still filling insane asylums, all because of overwork. Why can't an equalization be found? This said eighty per cent. of our leading men are country born. They are great for the reason that they had the invaluable training of self-reliance. Now, the city or town does not furnish so-called proper work for the boy, but it seems to me still more improper for him to grow up in idleness, so why not teach him housework too. A good, strong boy can sweep much easier than his mother or sister, and with a little care can be taught to sweep the corners clean too. It serves to train his muscles as effectively as a foot ball or a punching bag.

A scrubbing brush in his hands works off some of his superfluous energy. He can be taught to cook too. The chemical properties in the culinary department produce the same effect if the ingredients are mixed by the boy wearing a clean white apron. It gives the boy a feeling of responsibility which is especially beneficial in developing character. He must play of course, but he will enjoy his play much more after a little useful toil. He will make a kinder, more sympathetic husband for his early spirit of helpfulness. By the mutual assistance of each member of a family an ideal republic is established. Our great republic is composed of many families. As the family is the nation. Let us foster the spirit of self-reliance and unity and so develop the feeling of the brotherhood of man and the fatherhood of God.

HARVESTING GRAINS.

The Time to Cut the Crop is When the Stalk Indicates Full Maturity.

The proper time for harvesting farm grains, such as wheat, oats, barley or any other cereals, is immediately after their kernels have been fully matured.

When the green color of the straw just below the head changes to yellow the grain, be it ripe or unripe at the time, cannot afterward be more fully developed. When the upper part of the stem is disorganized, frequently shown by its altered hue, then the supply of sap to the head is cut off, and development ceases, as the head of the grain does not possess the power of absorbing nutriment from the air.

It is evident that the final act of vegetation is the production of seed, and after the performance of this function every plant perishes. The grains which include the cereals are annuals, or plants which have but a year's existence. Consequently their development ceases as they have produced their seeds.

When oats, wheat and other cereals attain this final point in their growth the circulation of their sap ceases, their color changes from green to yellow, and they undergo certain chemical changes which destroy their power of assimilating mineral water and consequently render them no longer capable of increasing their weight.

When the vital processes which are incessantly going on in the growing plants are brought to a close the purely chemical forces come into operation.

If the seed be perfectly matured and allowed to remain ungathered it is attacked in wet weather by the oxygen of the air, a portion of the carbon is burned off, some of its starch is converted into sugar and in extreme cases it germinates and becomes malty. Not only is the seed liable to injury from the ravages of the sparrows and gophers.

It is not necessary that ripe wheat should be cut as soon as possible, but it is sometimes desirable to reap it before it becomes fully matured. When the grain is intended for consumption as food the less bran it contains the better. The bran, as is well known, forms the covering of vital constituents of the seed. The bran of the kernel is the last part of the organ to be perfected.

There can be only one object attained by allowing the seed to fully ripen itself, and that is the insurance of its more perfect adaptability to the purpose of reproduction. When covering is thick it best protects the germ of the future plant, inclosed in it from the ordinary atmospheric influences until it is placed under the proper condition for its germination.

In conclusion it may be said that a great many farmers are in favor of early thrashing of grain for the reason that they have met with severe losses when grain was allowed to remain in the shock or stack until the rush of the season was over. A good plan is to engage a machine very early in the season to begin thrashing just as soon as the grain is in condition to stack.

Shock thrashing is cheaper than stacking and afterward thrashing. Of course unfavorable weather may increase the cost of shock thrashing, but it is a satisfaction to see the fields cleared and the grain safely stored.

Proper Drainage System.
If your barn and feed yards have a proper system of drainage, there will be little danger of rheumatism among your pigs. If you have not worked out such a system, do so now.

FARM NOTES

An acre of good sorghum should produce three to five tons of fair hay.

Onions, cabbage and tomatoes are good crops for the owner of an acre tract.

Next to the mowing machine in importance in alfalfa harvest is the side delivery rake.

Once a week all manure should be cleaned away from the barn and all refuse disposed of.

Care for the young animals as their growth will not be stunted. Keep them growing all the time.

After the hay is off the meadow we can see its thin spaces better. Get busy with the manure spreader.

The excellent grasses are rich in mucic and some farming materials and are loosening and cooling to the system.

As soon as the crop appears above ground it needs cultivation, both to kill the weeds and to admit the air to the roots of the plants.

Grass, clover, corn fodder and cow-peas when fed in green state are returned by farm animals much more than after they are cured.

It has been shown that cowpeas mature in about sixty days. This proves that the seed can be sown after a heavy frost has been removed, and the young growth will result by the time the farmer is ready to fall plow.

Pace fences are always letting the stock look through into the corn crop, and very often the cow doesn't stop at the fence of corn destroyed. Sometimes a valuable animal secured an overdose of corn and adds to the damaging results of the raid by dying.

HORTICULTURE

THE IRONDEQUOIT MELON.

Experts Agree That It Surpasses in Richness of Flavor All Other Species.

The township of Irondequoit, Monroe county, has long been known as the "garden land" of western New York, and it was here that the Irondequoit muskmelon was first grown. It was introduced in 1889 by James Vick's Sons and at once became a favorite in the Rochester markets. The second year one of the Rochester hotels contracted for the entire crop of the largest growers. The supply has ever been equal to the demand on the local market, and the popularity of this melon has extended in all directions. A well known Michigan fruit grower has this to say regarding the Irondequoit:

"As for myself, I would rather have one fully developed Irondequoit than six of the best other melons I ever ate, such as Oage, Gans, Ford, etc. X"

The Irondequoit Melon.

planted about one acre of them and thinned them out to just one plant to each hill, four feet apart, and it was hard to find a place ten feet square that did not have from ten to twenty good melons on it. I sold every melon through a nearby grocer, and in the height of the season he used two wagon loads a day, and people came from the most remote parts of the city for them as soon as they were sure of getting the quality. We warranted every melon, large or small, and did not have to replace more than five or six the whole season, and we concluded that any man was justified in trying to get another of them. The Irondequoit is unusually attractive in appearance, the large, finely netted yellow fruits making a display that catches the customer's eye, and the rich, dark orange flesh of a cut melon is sure to close a sale. The flavor is deliciously sweet, rich and spicy.

CABBAGE CULTURE.

Texas Department of Agriculture Gives a Few Pointers That Will Lead to Success.

From an excellent bulletin, entitled "The A. B. C. of Truck Growing," by Samuel H. Dixon of the Texas department of agriculture, one may obtain the following cultural directions:

It is the custom to make a seed bed about four feet wide, level and about six inches square above the surrounding surface. The seed should be sown from one-fourth to one-half an inch deep, according to the character of the soil. Make the drills across the bed from four to five inches apart. The bed should be kept moist and protected from the rays of the sun.

The cabbage is a very gross feeder and requires a fertile soil and good cultivation to reach perfection. Cultivation should follow each rain. In fact, the most successful growers favor weekly cultivation, even in the absence of rain. There is no crop grown that responds more readily to cultivation than cabbage.

The soil best suited to cabbage is a moist, well drained, sandy loam soil. If it is not rich with humus it must be thoroughly fertilized with a nitrogenous fertilizer.

Cabbage ought to be ready for the market in from five to six months from seed planting, depending, of course, upon the weather conditions. To insure the lifting of the plant handle the roots thoroughly before planting. This is not a necessary operation, however, if the soil is moist and weather conditions are favorable.

Rows in which the transplanted plant is to be set should be three and a half feet apart. The distance in the row will be governed largely by the variety planted. The large varieties should be set twenty-four inches apart, while the small varieties can be set from sixteen to eighteen inches apart in the rows.

Cabbage should not be cut until it has formed a compact hard head. It is usually shipped in crates. An acre should produce from 150 to 250 crates.

Of varieties grown in southern California the Early Winterset early occupies first place. It is one of the best early cabbages in cultivation. It is certainly deserving of its popularity, grown extensively for market and shipping. Its merits are many, among which are large heads for an early set, small outside foliage and uniformity of crop, pyramidal in shape, very solid, fine texture and sweet.

The Burket or First Early, is a flat headed cabbage, fully as early in maturing as the well known Early Jersey Wakefield. It is a cross of a fine strain of Early Jersey Wakefield on the well known Burket cabbage and is now thoroughly fixed as to type. The heads are large and very solid and the leaves tender, being entirely free from coarseness. The plants may be set as early as the field as the Wakefield and can be depended upon to head up well.
